What is a Competency Based Interview?

A Competency based Interview, sometimes called a Structured Interview, is designed to test one or more specific skills. The answer is then matched against pre-decided criteria and marked accordingly. For example, the interviewers may want to test the candidate's ability to deal with stress by asking first how the candidate generally handles stress and then asking the candidate to provide an example of a situation where he worked under pressure

The skills and competencies that can be tested vary depending on the post applied for.

The most common competencies tested often include -:

ADAPTABILITY | DELEGATION | LEADERSHIP | COMPLIANCE | EXTERNAL AWARENESS | LEVERAGING
DIVERSITY | COMMUNICATION | FLEXIBILITY | ORGANISATIONAL AWARENESS | CONFLICT MANAGEMENT
INDEPENDENCE | RESILIENCE & TENACITY | CREATIVITY & INNOVATION | INFLUENCING | RISK TAKING
DECISIVENESS | INTEGRITY | SENSITIVITY TO OTHERS

What Kind of Competency based Interview Questions can be asked?

Although most questions tend to ask for examples of situations where you have demonstrated a specific skill, they can appear in different formats.

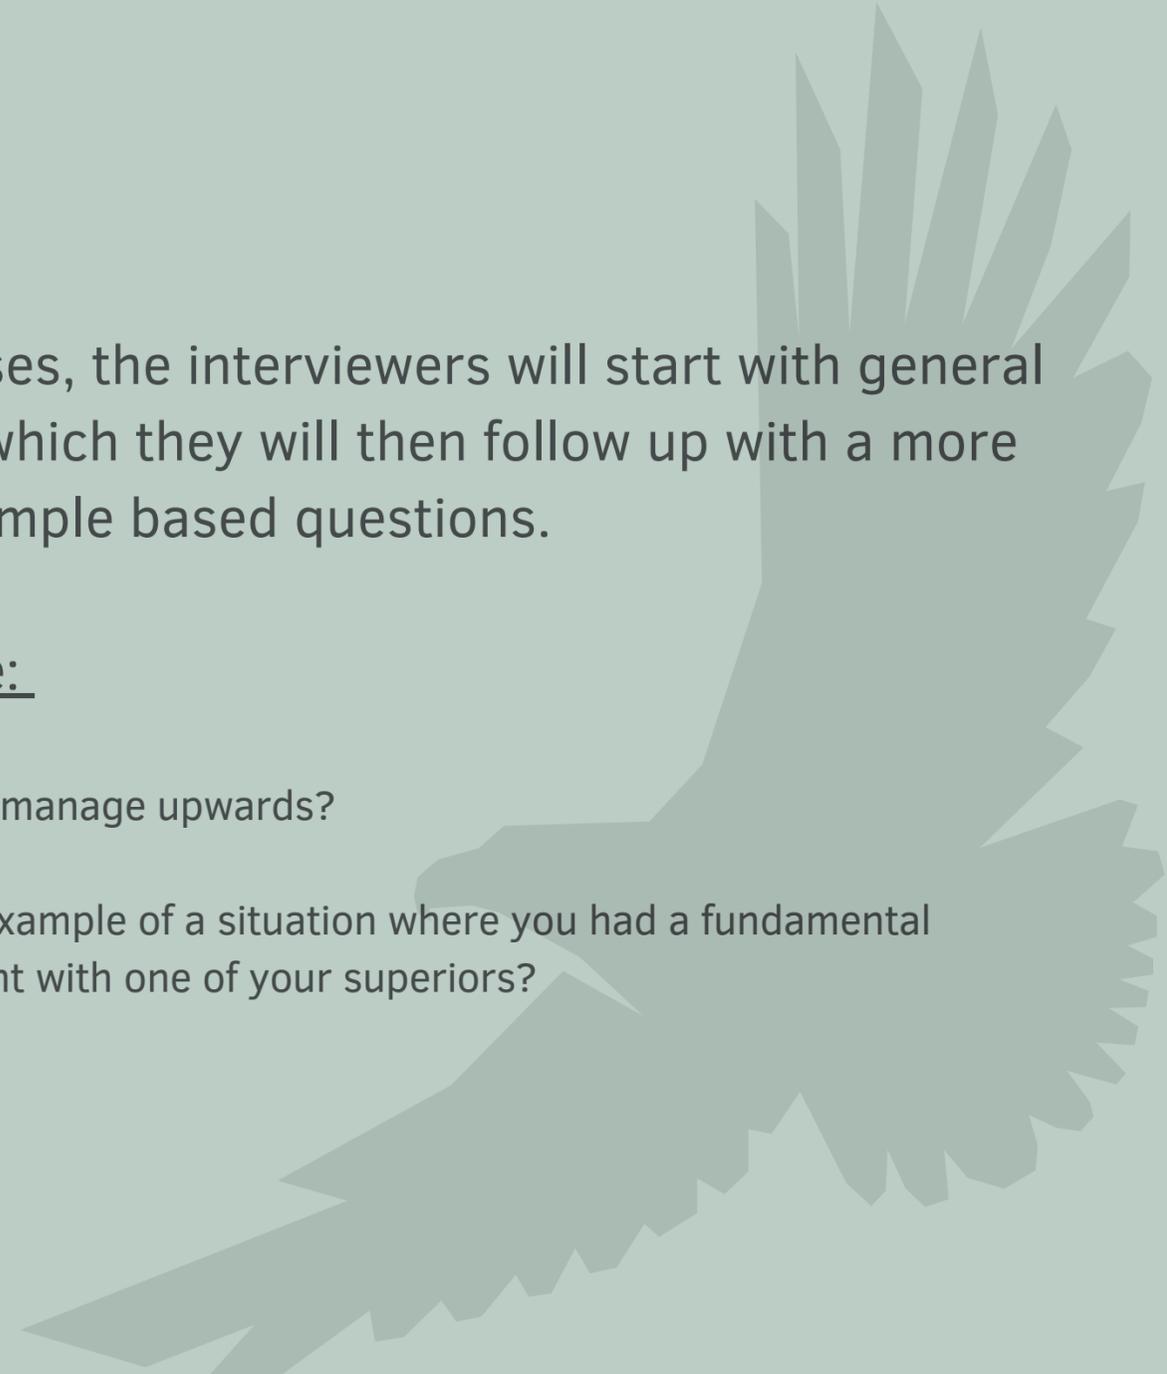

Examples include:

- How do you maintain good working relationships with your senior colleagues?
- Give us an example of a situation where you had to deal with a conflict with an internal or external client?
- How do you influence people in situations where there are conflicting agendas?
- Tell us about a situation where you made a decision and then changed your mind?

In many cases, the interviewers will start with general questions, which they will then follow up with a more specific example based questions.

For Example:

- How do you manage upwards?
- Give us an example of a situation where you had a fundamental disagreement with one of your superiors?

The following list details many common competency based questions

- When is that last time that you had an argument with a colleague?
- When did you last upset someone?
- What steps do you take to understand your colleagues' personalities?

PREPARING FOR A COMPETENCY BASED INTERVIEW

Preparation is key if you want to answer all the questions thrown at you without having to think too much on the spot on the day of the interview.

Read and re-read the job description or listen very carefully to the brief given to you by your Consultant taking accurate copious notes. This will enable you to work out what competencies are likely to be tested on and prepare answers based on the skills that are likely to be tested.

Always identify examples from your background which demonstrate clearly that you possess the skills and competencies that you are being asked to demonstrate.

The S.T.A.R method and approach is universally accepted as one of the best methods of answering competency based interviews

S SITUATION T TASK A ACTION R RESULT

STEP 1

– Situation or Task

Describe the situation that you were confronted with or the task that needed to be accomplished. With the STAR approach you need to set the context.

Make it concise and informative, concentrating solely on what is useful to the story.

For example, if the question is asking you to describe a situation where you had to deal with a difficult person, explain how you came to meet that person and why they were being difficult. If the question is asking for an example of teamwork, explain the task that you had to undertake as a team.

It is a universally recognised communication technique designed to enable you to provide a meaningful and complete answer to questions asking for examples. At the same time, it has the advantage of being simple enough to be applied easily.

Many interviewers will have been trained in using the STAR structure. Even if they have not, they will recognise its value when they see it. The information will be given to them in a structured manner and, as a result, they will become more receptive to the messages you are trying to communicate.

S SITUATION T TASK A ACTION R RESULT

STEP 2

- Action

This is the most important section of the STAR approach as it is where you will need to demonstrate and highlight the skills and personal attributes that the question testing. Now that you have set the context of your story, you need to explain what you did. In doing so, you will need to remember the following:

- Be personal, i.e. talk about you, not the rest of the team.
- Go into some detail. Do not assume that they will guess what you mean.
- Steer clear of technical information, unless it is crucial to your story.
- Explain what you did, how you did it, and why you did it.

What you did, how you did it, and why you did it

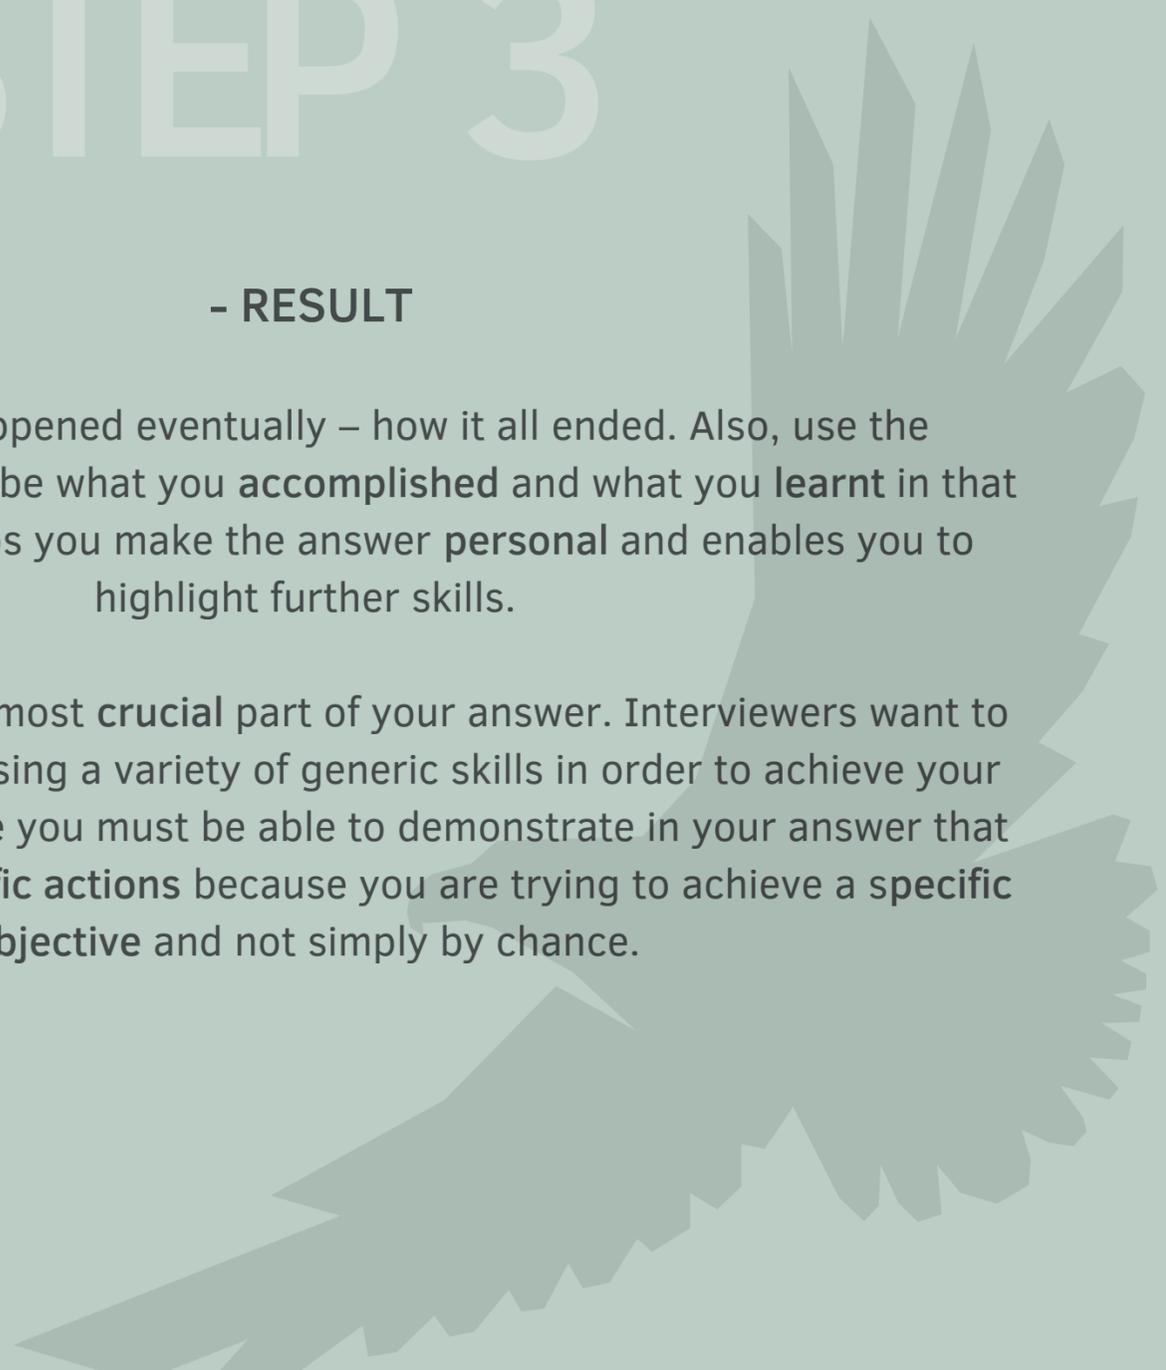

The interviewers will want to know how you reacted to the situation. This is where you can start selling some important skills. For example, you may want to describe how you used the team to achieve a particular objective and how you used your communication skills to keep everyone updated on progress etc.

STEP 3

- RESULT

Explain what happened eventually – how it all ended. Also, use the opportunity to describe what you accomplished and what you learnt in that situation. This helps you make the answer personal and enables you to highlight further skills.

This is probably the most crucial part of your answer. Interviewers want to know that you are using a variety of generic skills in order to achieve your objectives. Therefore you must be able to demonstrate in your answer that you are taking specific actions because you are trying to achieve a specific objective and not simply by chance.

How is a competency based interview marked?

Before the interview, the interviewers will have determined which type of answers would score positive points and which types of answers would count against the candidates.

For example, for questions such as "Describe a time when you had to deal with pressure", the positive and negative indicators may be as follows:

Positive indicators	Negative indicators
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Demonstrates a positive approach towards the problem.• Considers the wider need of the situation• Recognises his own limitations• Is able to compromise• Is willing to seek help when necessary• Uses effective strategies to deal with pressure/stress	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Perceives challenges as problems• Attempts unsuccessfully to deal with the situation alone• Used inappropriate strategies to deal with pressure/stress

How is a competency based interview marked?

In some cases, negative indicators are divided into two further sections: minor negative indicators, i.e. those which are negative but which don't matter so much; and decisive negative indicators i.e. those for which they won't forgive you e.g. not asking for help when needed.

Marks are then allocated depending on the extent to which the candidate's answer matches those negative and positive indicators. Here is an example of a marking schedule for the table above:

0	No evidence	No evidence reported
1	Poor	Little evidence of positive indicators. Mostly negative indicators, many decisive
2	Areas for concern	Limited number of positive indicators. Many negative indicators, one or more decisive.
3	Satisfactory	Satisfactory display of positive indicators. Some negative indicators but none decisive.
4	Good to excellent	Strong display of positive indicators

If the interviewers feel that there are areas that you have failed to address, they may help you along by probing appropriately.

For example, in answering the question above "Describe an example of a time when you had to deal with pressure", if you focussed on how you dealt with the practical angle of the problem but you forgot to discuss how you managed your stress during and after the event, the interviewers may prompt you with a further question such as "How did you handle the stress at the time?".

This would give you an opportunity to present a full picture of your behaviour. This is where the marking can become subjective. Indeed, if an interviewer likes you, he may be more tempted to prompt you and push you along than if he has bad vibes about you.
